

Professional Footballers Pension Scheme

The Annual Allowance

The annual allowance is a limit on the amount that can be contributed to your pension each year, while still receiving tax relief. It's based on your earnings for the year and is capped at £60,000.

What is the annual allowance?

The annual allowance is a limit to the total amount of contributions that can be paid to defined contribution pension schemes and the total amount of benefits that you can build up in a defined benefit pension scheme each year, for tax relief purposes. The annual allowance is currently capped at £60,000 although a lower limit of £10,000 may apply. The annual allowance applies across all of the schemes you belong to, it's not a 'per scheme' limit and includes all of the contributions that you or your employer pay or anyone else who pays on your behalf.

What happens if I exceed the allowance?

If you exceed the annual allowance in a year, you won't receive tax relief on any contributions you paid that exceed the limit and you will be faced with an annual allowance charge.

The annual allowance charge will be added to the rest of your taxable income for the tax year in question when determining your tax liability. Alternatively, if the annual allowance charge is more than £2,000, you can ask your pension scheme to pay the charge from your benefits. This means your pension scheme benefits would be reduced.

Unless you have a money purchase annual allowance (MPAA), you may be able to bring forward any unused annual allowances from the previous three tax years, to either reduce your annual allowance charge to a lower amount or reduce the annual allowance charge completely.

Your pension provider or scheme administrator should be able to give you your pension input amount for that scheme. This refers to the amount of contributions or value of accrued benefits during the pension input period. If you think that you may be getting close to your annual allowance, or may have exceeded it, you may wish to consider taking advice from a regulated financial adviser.

Changes to the annual allowance

The Money Purchase Annual Allowance (MPAA)

The Money Purchase Annual Allowance was introduced on 6th April 2015 and was most recently set at £4,000 (gross) per annum from 6th April 2017. The government has now increased the MPAA to £10,000 (gross) per annum which applies to contributions made from 6th April 2023.

If you have taken flexible benefits which include income, such as an 'Uncrystallised Funds Pension Lump Sum (UFPLS)' or flexi-access drawdown with income, and you want to continue paying contributions to a defined contribution pension scheme, you will have a reduced annual allowance of £10,000 per annum towards your defined contribution benefits.

The reduced allowance will apply if you have withdrawn more than the tax-free pension commencement lump sum (PCLS). The reduced amount is known as the 'money purchase annual allowance' (MPAA) and includes both your own contribution and any other contribution paid on your behalf, such as an employer or a third party. You cannot bring forward any unused annual allowances from the previous three tax years to warrant a higher contribution than £10,000 towards your defined contribution benefits.

The money purchase annual allowance will only start to apply from the day after you have taken flexible benefits and so any previous savings are not affected.

The New Tapered Annual Allowance

The new tapered annual allowance came into force as of 6 April 2023 for high earners. For every £2 of income above £260,000 per annum, £1 of annual allowance will be lost. The maximum reduction will be £50,000 meaning that anyone earning over £360,000 per annum will have their annual allowance capped at £10,000.

An income floor will mean the taper will not apply unless the individual's income excluding pension contributions exceeds £200,000 (referred to as their "threshold income").
